Mott Francis, the brother of the author, to whom the book was dedicated. Rutkow GS 47: "Mott was one of the premier surgeons of 19th century America. His contributions were numerous and included innovative vascular operations (GM 2942, 2950-2953, and 2958) and oncologic procedures (GM 3259, 4447, and 4452). Unfortunately, Mott disliked writing and as a consequence never wrote any surgical textbooks. Francis's work comes closest to preserving, as he put it, '...some of the aphorisms of one whose experience is as vast in the practice of surgery, as his reputation is great in the eyes of his countrymen.' Although not organized in a systematic fashion, the 91 cases provide a fabulous wealth of information." 700,00
